

3. THIRD LEVEL

3.1 Introduction

On this level you will continue to track and follow different processes, fully understanding how they occur. You will train and form your own personality. The knowledge you gain is widely applicable and is not just for healing. During this level, you will use and develop your intuition and consciousness more deeply. It is very important for you to be consciously tuned to all processes you are dealing with and to consciously participate in them. The more your consciousness is present in processes, the more professional and precise your work will be. The consciousness is the one that should recognize what needs to be done and to ensure modifications.

On the previous level we made a step into the world of the distance registration. Now we continue fine-tuning distance healing, as well as learning localization and detection of unknown objects, people and their inner states. We will start with an example that clearly and easily shows we are actually limitless and we are connected to the Universe by the laws of nature.

Try to answer this question: “Where is the air, where is it located?” It is everywhere, right. Could we say that the air is “one” then? Yes, we could. If it is everywhere then it is one single entity. In that case, if you breathe in now, where did this air come from? Take your time with your answers and don’t hasty, just allow your head slowly process this. Did the air you inhaled come from a room you are in? Yes and no. If the air is “one” then how can it be in just one room? Does this mean that the air you are breathing did not come just from the room you are in? And if someone else is in that room with you, that person is breathing the same air. So, does this mean that you are also breathing someone else’s air?

Everyone brings at least mini modifications with them just being in some space. We are constantly throwing micro particles into the air with our breaths and we are constantly moving from one space and environment to the next, bringing along something from that space or environment with us. So then, what kind of air is in this room right now? Let’s simplify this question, how many frequencies are now in this room? All kinds and manners of them of any range imaginable – simply put, a huge amount of them. And if we are influencing each other, where is our breath then? Everywhere.

From this example, we could conclude that one breath is all it takes for us to connect to the entire planet, roughly speaking. We are constantly connected. And if there exists such a natural connection, what is it that we should do to position ourselves in this sea of information that already exists within us? It is simple – we should adjust our receiver. It might be hard but it is indeed natural.

This entire story shows how boundless and linked we all are. Possibilities are endless! Just as you can register the frequencies of an object it is also possible to register frequencies of a person – there is no difference there. All you need is the right technique. With the exercises of this level you will become stable and come to the state of faith where no doubt can break you or your resolve. It doesn't matter if you saw someone or heard about him or her before treatments, you will be able to find frequencies of this person. For starters, you train yourselves to feel forms, to register hidden objects and those objects in motion.
